Dear Steve

Assurance letter for draft assumptions book v3.0

1. Transpower intends to consult on updates to the assumptions book under the transmission pricing methodology (TPM). The updated version of the assumptions book will be assumptions book v3.0.
2. Transpower asked us to review draft assumptions book v3.0 and the accompanying consultation paper. We provided Transpower with some suggested changes to and comments on these documents. You have confirmed our suggested changes and comments have been taken into account in producing draft assumptions book v3.0 for consultation.
3. In our opinion, subject to the qualifications below, draft assumptions book v3.0 complies with the TPM in all material respects.
4. Our assurance above:
  - (a) is based on the information made available to us by or through Transpower; and
  - (b) goes to legal requirements only. We do not express any view on economic, engineering or modelling matters (including the reasonableness of modelling inputs).
5. This opinion may be relied on by Transpower and its directors. Except to the extent required by law, no other person may, without our written consent, use this letter or enable this letter to be relied on by any other person, or allow this letter to be quoted or referred to in any document or filed with any regulatory authority.

6. We are aware Transpower intends to publish this letter with the consultation documents for draft assumptions book v3.0. We understand that publication is not intended to waive privilege in any advice we have given to Transpower (whether in relation to draft assumptions book v3.0 or any other matter).

Regards
